3 Copyright and Grant of Licence

[1]. The Authors retain copyright in the Article. Nothing in this agreement transfers or assigns ownership of copyright to the Publisher.

[2]. The Authors grant the Publisher a worldwide, royalty-free, non-exclusive, perpetual and irrevocable licence to publish, reproduce, distribute, communicate, display, store and archive the Article, in whole or in part, in any medium and in any format now known or later developed.

[3]. The licence in clause 3.2 includes the right to:
Publish the Version of Record online under CC BY 4.0 and to make it freely available to the public without charge, registration or embargo.

- ✓ Produce and distribute the Article in any format required for publication, indexing, accessibility or preservation, including HTML, PDF, XML and machine-readable full text.

- ✓ Deposit or transmit the Article and its metadata to Crossref, DOAJ, PubMed Central where eligible, indexing and abstracting services, discovery services, repositories, and digital preservation services, subject to the applicable eligibility, technical, and acceptance requirements of those services.
- ✓ Assign a DOI to the Article and register that DOI and its metadata.
- ✓ Use the title, abstract, author names, affiliations and ORCID iDs for the promotion, indexing and announcement of the Article and of the Journal.
- ✓ Permit text and data mining of the Article, and to supply the Article to third parties for that purpose, consistent with CC BY 4.0.

[4]. The licence takes effect on the date this agreement is signed and continues for the full term of copyright in the Article and any extension or renewal of it.

[5]. The Authors grant this licence on a non-exclusive basis. The Authors remain free to exercise all rights they hold in the Article, subject only to clause 5.

4 Open Access Licence and Its Permanence

[1]. The Version of Record will be published under CC BY 4.0. Under that licence, any member of the public may copy, redistribute, adapt, translate, remix, build upon and commercially exploit the Article, in any medium or format, provided appropriate credit is given to the Authors and the Journal, a link to the licence is provided, and any changes are indicated.

[2]. The Authors acknowledge that the CC BY 4.0 licence is irrevocable except as expressly provided in the terms of that licence. Publication of the Article under CC BY 4.0 does not permit the Authors or Publisher to retroactively impose additional restrictions on rights already granted to the public under that licence.

[3]. Publication under CC BY 4.0 does not create an obligation to maintain every online copy indefinitely where removal, restriction, correction, or other action is required by applicable law, court order, privacy requirements, or the Journal's post-publication policies. Where an article is retracted, corrected, or removed from the Journal's website, the Journal will maintain an appropriate bibliographic and editorial record in accordance with its post-publication policy.

[4]. The Authors confirm that CC BY 4.0 is compatible with the open access requirements of any funder, institution or employer to which they are subject, or that they have obtained any necessary approval to publish on these terms.

5 Rights Retained by the Authors

[1]. The Authors may, at any time and without seeking permission from the Publisher:

- ✓ Post the submitted version, the accepted manuscript and the Version of Record on a personal website, an institutional repository, a subject repository or a preprint server, with no embargo period;
- ✓ Reuse the Article, in whole or in part, in a thesis, dissertation, book, review, lecture, grant application or subsequent work by any of the Authors;
- ✓ Reproduce and distribute copies for teaching, for internal institutional use and for scholarly correspondence;
- ✓ Deposit the Article with a funder or institution in order to comply with an open access mandate;
- ✓ Make translations of the Article for scholarly purposes.

[2]. When exercising these rights, the Authors will cite the Version of Record and include its DOI. The Authors retain all moral rights, including the right to be identified as the authors of the Article.

- ✓ The Article is not under consideration, in review, or accepted for publication by any other journal or publisher, and will not be submitted elsewhere while this agreement stands;

- ✓ The Authors have the full right, power and authority to grant the licence in clause 3, and have not previously granted any right that conflicts with it;
- ✓ The Article does not infringe the copyright, trade mark, database right, patent, confidentiality, privacy or any other right of any person;

7 Authorship

[1]. Every person named in the byline meets all four authorship criteria of the International Committee of Medical Journal Editors, namely substantial contribution to the work; drafting or critical revision; approval of the final version; and agreement to be accountable for all aspects of the work.

[2]. No person who meets those criteria has been omitted from the byline, and no person who does not meet them has been included. The Authors confirm that there is no guest, gift, honorary or ghost authorship.

[3]. Every Author has read and approved the final version of the Article and this agreement, and agrees to the order of names in the byline.

[4]. Artificial intelligence tools are not, and cannot be, authors. Any use of generative artificial intelligence in producing the Article has been declared in the Article in accordance with the Journal's guidelines, and the Authors accept full responsibility for the accuracy, originality and integrity of all material so produced.

[5]. The use of AI-assisted tools does not relieve the Authors of responsibility for the accuracy, originality, attribution, confidentiality, and integrity of the Article.

[6]. Any request to add, remove or reorder authors after acceptance must be made in writing to the editorial office by the corresponding author, with reasons, and must be signed by every Author and by the person being added or removed. A fresh copy of this agreement will then be required.

[3]. The Authors will notify the editorial office promptly if any disclosure in clauses 9.1 or 9.2 changes before publication.

10 Third-Party Material

[1]. Where the Article contains material in which copyright or other rights are held by a third party, including figures, tables, photographs, extended quotations, questionnaires, scales, datasets, software output, or supplementary material, the Authors are responsible for obtaining all permissions necessary for the intended publication and reuse of that material.

[2]. Where third-party material is not included under the CC BY 4.0 licence applying to the Article, the Article must clearly identify that material and state the applicable copyright or licence terms.

[3]. Where third-party material is intended to be distributed under CC BY 4.0, the Authors must obtain permission or a licence that permits such use, including commercial reuse and adaptation where applicable.

[4]. Where permission is unavailable, the material must either be removed, replaced, used under an applicable copyright exception or limitation, or otherwise handled in accordance with applicable law.

[5]. The Authors must provide appropriate attribution and permission information for third-party material where required.

11 Undertakings of the Publisher

The Publisher undertakes to:

- ✓ Publish the Version of Record under CC BY 4.0, with the licence clearly identified on the article itself;

- ✓ Send the Authors proofs before publication and make reasonable corrections requested by the corresponding author within the stated proof period.

12 Corrections, Retractions and Permanence of the Record

[1]. The Version of Record forms part of the permanent scholarly record. The Publisher will ordinarily maintain the published Article online. In exceptional circumstances, the Publisher may remove or restrict access to the full text where required by law, court order, serious privacy or confidentiality concerns, defamation, a serious risk to public health or safety, or other circumstances recognized by applicable publication-ethics guidance. Where full-text removal occurs, bibliographic metadata and an explanatory notice will normally be retained.

[2]. Where an error is identified after publication, the Publisher may issue a correction, a corrigendum, an erratum, an expression of concern or a retraction notice, following COPE guidance. A retracted article remains online, clearly marked as retracted, so that the scholarly record stays complete.

[3]. The Authors will cooperate promptly and in good faith with any post-publication inquiry, including by supplying original data, images, code or approvals on request.

[4]. The Publisher may issue a correction or retraction without the Authors' consent where the Authors do not respond within a reasonable period, where they cannot agree among themselves, or where the evidence requires it. Any such notice will state who has, and has not, agreed to it.

	[5]. The corresponding author will keep the editorial office informed of a working email address for at least two years after publication.
13	Publication Charges
	Any publication charge applicable to the Article is the charge published on the Journal's website at the date of acceptance. Complete as applicable:

		A publication charge of Rs. 30,000 applies, payable by _____ with the transaction ID: _____ dated on: _____
	Acceptance of the Article is based solely on scholarly and editorial considerations and is not conditional upon payment of an APC. Where an APC is applicable, however, payment of the applicable charge is a condition of publication. If the APC is not paid within the period specified by the Journal, the Publisher reserves the right to withhold publication or cancel publication of the accepted Article, notwithstanding its prior acceptance.
14	Indemnity and Liability
	[1]. The Authors are responsible for the accuracy of the warranties and representations made in Sections 6–10 and, to the extent permitted by applicable law, shall be responsible for losses directly arising from a material breach of those warranties. [2]. To the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, the Publisher shall not be liable for indirect, incidental, consequential, or special losses arising from publication of the Article, except where such liability cannot lawfully be excluded. [3]. Publication of the Article does not constitute endorsement or verification by the Publisher, the editors or the reviewers of any method, finding, product or opinion it contains.
15	Personal Data
	[1]. The Authors consent to the Publisher processing their names, affiliations, email addresses, ORCID iDs, contribution statements, and other professional information reasonably necessary for manuscript processing, peer review, publication, indexing, preservation, and post-publication correspondence. [2]. Information designated for publication, including author names, affiliations, ORCID iDs, corresponding-author contact details, and contribution statements where applicable, may be made publicly available as part of the scholarly record. [3]. Personal data will be processed in accordance with the Journal's Personal Data Protection Policy and applicable data protection laws.
16	Employer, Institutional and Government Authors
	[1]. Where an Author's employer or institution owns the copyright in that Author's contribution, whether under a contract of employment or otherwise, this agreement must also be signed by a person authorised to act for that employer or institution, in Section 18. [2]. Where an Author is an officer or employee of a government and the contribution falls within their official duties, that Author should indicate this beside their signature. The licence in clause 3 is granted to the fullest extent permitted in respect of that contribution. [3]. Where the Article was prepared under a contract, grant or collaboration that gives a third-party right over publication, the Authors confirm that all necessary approvals have been obtained.
17	General
	[1]. This agreement takes effect on the date of the last signature and remains in force notwithstanding any later correction, retraction or dispute concerning the Article. [2]. If the Article is not published by the Journal, this agreement lapses and all rights granted under it revert to the Authors, except in respect of any use already lawfully made.

	[3]. This agreement is the entire agreement between the parties concerning the publication of the Article and supersedes any earlier understanding. It may be varied only by a written agreement signed by the Publisher and the corresponding author acting with the authority of all Authors, or by all affected parties where required. [4]. If any provision of this agreement is held to be invalid or unenforceable, the remaining provisions continue in full force. [5]. An electronic signature, a scanned signature, or a signature applied by a recognised electronic signing service, has the same effect as a handwritten signature. The agreement may be signed in counterparts, each of which is an original. [6]. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of India. Subject to applicable law, the courts having jurisdiction in the state of Tamil Nadu, India shall have exclusive jurisdiction over any dispute arising from it.
